A sudden gust of wind just at the moment when the boys were making their supreme choice fabrics to show that will do effort came up and drove the stream to one side, and threw them out of second or third money at least. Then, again, after the play-out was over, nearly every company present entered a vigorous protest against the play of the Red Jackets, the assertion being made that a considerable mass of some foreign substance, of a somewhat greasy nature, was projected from the playing pipe on to the paper at the very first play. After a long discussion, however, the judges decided that the protest would not hold water on technical grounds, and

One-Sided Education.

By Dr. George G. Groff.

FEW weeks ago, in a Pennsylvania college, the professor of botany requested each student to bring into his class on the morrow a complete dandellon plant-root, stem, leaves and flowers. In this class was a young man, a sophomore, considered above the average as a student in languages and mathematical studies, who lives in one of the Atlantic seaboard cities, who did not know what plant was meant by dandelion.

This may be an extreme illustration of how many children are trained and how little they know of natural objects, but many others of a similar character could be cited. Few college students from the cities know our common trees by sight. Comparatively few country boys know the names of any grasses except timothy and orchard grass. The common mammals they may know by name, but few know the names of the birds about them.

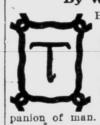

Under the elective system now in vogue in our colleges a man may graduate from almost any institution, never having studied for an hour chemistry, botany, geology, zoology, or any other science which treats of nature. It is scarcely too much to say that such graduates are not fitted for any position as leaders in modern life.

In Porto Rico a year ago a clergyman who had made a tour of the island was asked if he had seen the coffee plants. He replied that he had, and that they were annuals, about the size of tomato plants! And yet this man went to the island that he might be informed about it and its people. His early education had been defective and he could not observe.

Without some knowledge of chemistry it is impossible for one to read any good modern book, journal or paper. Our civilization is built on chemical knowledge. So, also, because our age is so material, one needs some knowledge of plants, minerals, rocks and animals. If these subjects should be pursued by youth in general, how much more important are they for boys and girls in the country! A present difficulty is that few teachers, comparatively speaking, know enough of botany, geology or zoology to give any intelligent instruction in the branches. They have been trained in language and mathematics, but science has been slighted. If they attempt any instruction at all, it is from a textbook, and science is not to be learned from books. Think of reading of a dandelion in a textbook and not knowing it by sight.

The Place of the Horse.

By William F. McSparran.

HE good horse will never lose his place in his service to mankind. His usefulness as an indispensable agent for parposes of labor and locomotion will no doubt be still further modified, and much that the horse is doing to-day in time to come will be performed more cheaply with some other power; but as the changes grow toward that end the horse will more and more move into his impregnable position as the steadfast and intelligent friend and com-

The cable car, the electric car, the bicycle, each in its turn, it was predicted by the enthusiasts, would drive the horse into disuse, and finally practical extinction, but the horse is still here, better than ever, and those who love horses show no evidence of that love growing cold.

Now, it is asserted that the automobiles, the electric motors and future developments of these new methods of migration will surely supplant the horse. These are new. The horse is old, and the human heart is not easily weaned permanently away from its traditions, and the horse will no more be supplanted by the new rivals than he has been by the earlier ones. Man's love for a horse is not transferrable. The man may love any number of other things, animate and inanimate, but they will not in any measure usurp the love he has for a good horse. We may, and do, enjoy the race between the expensively constructed and skillfully handled automobiles; we cheer the winner and rejoice that the brain of man has conceived and the craft of his hand constructed such a beautiful machine, but we miss the supreme thrill of sympathetic enthusiasm that goes out to the superb performance of the beautiful horses coming down to the judges'

The machine is a triumph of art and skill and applied mechanics; the horse is as much or more a triumph of the art and skill and patience and life labor of the men who stand behind his pedigree, while his performance on the track and on the road is the intense expression of his individual life and the aspiration of his intelligence; and the heart and life of man goes out to him in the great struggle with a sense of brotherhood.

A thousand mechanical motors can be built to do what the best one has done, but ten thousand horses may have to be bred and trained and tried before one can equal the record of the winner; and while the breeding and all is being done for the horse, the lives of men are being contributed to the doing, and men's love for the horse is growing, and no machine will ever

Osier Culture on

By Grey E. Mitchell.

N many farms where there is some water front, land otherwise waste can be profitably used for osier culture. While willows will grow almost anywhere, they should be planted for greatest profit in a deep, sandy loam, well drained and thoroughly prepared. The ground should be level and moist, but there should be drainage. However, willows will grow in a comparatively dry soil, but the whips will be smaller, though tougher and more durable than when grown in a rich, moist soil. The growth under moist conditions is naturally more vigorous and much more rapid. According to Dr. B. E. Fermow, Professor of Forestry at Cornell, the best situation for free and rapid growth is along the banks of rivers and brooks which pass through a level country and on the small islands. which frequently occur in the midst of streams. Hollows or swales, the soil of which is composed of rich, soft, earthy particles, and which can be laid dry, furnish eligible situations for conversion into osieries; if water can occasionally be diverted onto such lands during the dry summer months, the situation may be considered as perfect. There are at present thousands of acres of marshy fands in the country, Mr. Fermow states, not paying two per cent. per annum, which, if drained at a small outlay and planted with willows, would yield an immense return, paying as high as twenty or thirty per cent, profit. The willow reaches its greatest production in the third year, and with proper care and good cultivation, it will continue to yield good results for a long run of years.

Willow baskets, hampers, chairs, etc., are a class of articles for which there is to-day an enormous demand. The manufacture in this country is increasing rapidly, but not sufficiently to meet this demand. Five cents a pound for dry willows is the price generally paid. At even a much less price there is a large profit in growing willows and an occupation is furvished for the winter months.

KKKKKK

Demand For One Cent Letter Postage

By Hon. Geo. W. Smith, Representative From Illinois

T is but a question of time when letter postage will be reduced to one cent per ounce, and the reduction will be made without creating any great deficiency in postal revenues. Since I introduced the bill last December providing for penny postage I have presented to the House petitions signed by at least a million business men from every State and section of the country, all urging its passage. Owing to the pressure of other measures, involving questions of party policy, no opportunity was presented for the consideration of the Penny Postage bill. But this much has been accomplished: The introduction of the measure has directed public attention to the subject. and has called forth statistics to show that, while a deficiency in the postal revenues will at first follow the reduction of letter postage, yet within a year or two the increase in receipts will be more than sufficient to make up for the loss caused by the inauguration of the cheaper rate.

The United States Government is the mightlest and best Government in the world, and it can well afford to give its citizens the cheapest postage in the world. As we are expanding, let us expand the business of the Postoffice Department. One-cent postage would mean an enormous increase in the number of letters mailed. It would be a boon not only to the private citizen, but to the business interests of the country, and especially the big advertising houses which spend hundreds of thousands of dollars a year. One-cent letter postage would distribute its benefits all around, and in very little while would more than pay for itself,

It is claimed that an experimental balloon recently attained an altitude of twelve miles, recording a temperature of eighty degrees F. below zero, at

The most economical processes are used in the lake region for the recovary of copper, so that it is found that ore yielding one and one-half per cent. will pay costs.

Experiments made in the physica. laboratory of Cornell University showed the production of 116 grains of liquid air by one horse power in one hour. Only two per cent. of the energy expended is stored in the liquid air.

Professor Alexander Graham Bell, ot telephone fame, is reported, according to the Western Electrician, to be interested in the construction of an airship, the building of which he is at present supervising. It is said the machine will utilize many principles of the kite.

Charles J. T. Burcey, of Syracuse, N Y., has patented a process for charring wood, which is stated to save all by products, thus greatly reducing the cost of charcoal to iron manufacturers. Mr. Burcey has succeeded in charring 225 cords of wood a day by his process at Elmer, Pa.

The substitution of the automobile fire engine for the horse machine, appears to be working successfully in Germany. Consul-General Guenther writes from Frankfort that a second 'auto" is to be purchased. Alcohol is used for fuel; it burns quickly, and gives out great heat, with no smoke. The engine is said to make good speed with little noise.

The ordinary household fly is partly responsible for the spread of cholera in the Philippines, according to a report made by Major L. M. Maus, Commissioner of Public Health for the Philippine Islands, to the War Department. The report says that from March 20 to May 15, 1005 cases of Asiatic cholera were reported in Manila, 800 of which resulted fatally.

Probably the biggest radish even raised in Missouri, or possibly anywhere else, was grown on the farm of W. M. Matlock, in Liberty Township, Washington County. It weighed five pounds, measured eleven and a half inches in circumference and twentyone luches in length, though several inches of the lower end had been broken off. The variety is unknown, but the seed came from the Agricultural Department.

He has lately published some of his remarkable photographs of submarine scenery, says the Pittsburg

He uses a hand camera, which is inclosed in a tight copper box, and mounted on a cast-iron tripod. Suitable mechanism is provided to expose and change the plates.

The pressure of the water, inconveniently great even at twenty or thirty feet, was an early difficulty, but this was counteracted by means of a rubber ball, holding about a gallon, from which air was forced through a tube into the box as the pressure increased

Light fades rapidly in sinking below the surface, daylight exposures being impracticable at a depth of twenty-five feet. Magnesium powder is burned in oxygen in a suitable glass globe, and by this powerful illumination instantaneous exposures are made with inter esting results.

What Causes the Itch to Write?

We are inclined on the whole to believe that the stimulus to literary production exists within and not without the man. It is not external circumstances, poverty or riches, sickness or health, greatness or humbleness that determine the productions or output of genius. It is the characteristics of the man that determine not what he shall learn or what he shall think, but what he shall do. A stimulus from without, such as poverty, may start production of course, but that is merely the physical awakening of a disposition that in any circumstances would have been awakened in some way at some time. True literature is the voice of the soul calling from the windows of the house of clay in response to those things of life that touch the nature of the soul that speaks .- London Spectator.

The Motion Prevailed.

An old town official of the city of Macon, Ga., says in Short Stories that during the night of the earthquake disturbances of 1886 the City Council was in session. When the quake shook the City Hall from basement to attic the Councilmen ran out, thinking the house would topple over. Whereupon the wag who kept the minutes of the meeting concluded his record with the following sentence:

"On motion of the City Hall, the Council adjourned."

BAY STATE CONDUCTORS.

Thomas Dickerson division 171, Order of Railway Conductors, of Mechanicsville, N. Y., extended an invitation to Bay State division 413 of Boston to visit them Aug. 24 and exemplify the work for them. So through the hospitality of General Superintendent D. W Sanborn of the Boston & Maine railroad, who placed a train free to the conductors, Saturday evening, Aug. 23, a train consisting of an engine, a compartment and two Pullman sleeping cars was set in the North Union station for the occasion. Chief Conductor Silsbee and his officers and members and visiting brothers took advantage and at 11.50 p. m. the train steamed out of the station bound for Saratoga. L. S. Davis had his hand upon the throttle and his eye upon the rail and guided the train the round trip of 412 miles around curves, over bridges, through tunnels and along the Hoosic and Deerfield, and across the Charles, Connecticut and the Hudson rivers; W F. Williams, whose faithfulness upon the footboard made it possible to make the speed that was accomplished. It goes without saying that when an engineer is hauling a company of the boys it is the pride of his heart to give them a ride that they will not forget, and he did it upon this occasion to the satisfaction of all. C. F. Wherren had charge of the train, with C. L. Clark and E. S. Grant serving as baggage master and brakeman, all O. R. C. men. Saratoga was reached at 6.55 a. m., and breakfast was served at the Commercial and the American Adelphi hotels, as the number had increased at each stop, and 112 hungry men answered to their names. After breakfast the brothers felt at ease to visit and spend the time as best suited them, and they improved the time. At 11.05 a. m. they again boarded the train and rolled away for Mechanicsville. On the way the train stopped five minutes and let the company obtain a good view of Saratoga lake, which is nine miles long. At 12.05 p. m. the train reached Mechanicsville and was met by Superintendent M. P. Snyder of the west sec tion of the Fitchburg division of the P & M R R He was very kind and did all in his power to make our stay as pleasant as possible. He had the train run out on the D. & H. R. R. yard and gave the men a good view of the Dinner was then served at the Leland and the Grand Central hotels, which are located just opposite each other upon the same street. A bountiful dinner was served and the men did ample justice to it. After dinner all adjourned to the hall close by and when the gavel sounded 200 conductors came to order. It was a sight to see so many conductors together, representing 10 or 12 different divisions of the Order of Railway Conductors, scattered from Buffalo, N. Y., to Portland, Me. Chief Conductor Holleran of Division 171 called the meeting to order and extended a hearty welcome to the visiting brothers. Then Chief Conductor Silsbee of Bay State division 413 and his officers took the chairs and proceeded to do the work and exempified the work upon six candidates to the hearty approval of all present. It was an occasion to be long remembered. Remarks followed from quite a number of the brothers, and it was decided by all that the meetings had been a great success.

The meeting adjourned at 3.55 p. m. and at the station the boys gathered around Superintendent Snyder and Brother Pavant was introduced and voiced the thanks of the party in such a very pleasant and touching manner as to stir Mr. Snyder very deeply and he responded in a few words that he was glad to be able to do anything for the boys, as he had risen from the ranks. Three cheers were given for Mr. Snyder and the party entered the cars and at 4.15 the steam was applied

All thanks to each one who aided in making the trip a success, and may they live long and enjoy many blessings in this beautiful world of ours. There was one great disappointment, as rail.

P. O. Clerks' Political Status-The part which postal employes are to be permitted to take in a political campaign is outlined in the following instructions which Acting Postmaster General Wynne has addressed to a postmaster who sent a letter of inquiry. "In reply to your letter, you are informed that you are not prohibited from joining a political club, nor making voluntary financial contributions outside of a government office or building, nor from acting as a delegate to a county, state or congressional convention. You should not, however serve as chairman of a state or county committee, nor take active part in conducting a political convention, nor make yourself unduly prominent in local political matters."

McMillian's Memorial-With a view to erecting in Washington a permanent and suitable memorial to the late Senator McMillan of Michigan, it is thought probable that one of the great ornamental fountains provided for in the park commissioner's plan will bear his name. Messrs. Burnham and McKim of the park commission regarded the suggestion with great favor, although no definite proposition has yet been made for carrying it out. It is reported that Augustus St. Gaudens has been engaged by Senator McMillan's family to make a bust of the senator, and it is thought a replica can be secured and suitably placed. Typhoid in Washington-Cases of typhoid fever in Washington have recently multiplied so rapidly that the local authorities have become alarmed and a special sanitary expert has been appointed by the commissioners of the District to investigate the cause or causes of the epidemic. There are now 305 cases of typhoid in Washington, and the disease is on the increase. The water generally used by the people of Washington comes from the Potomac river, the intake being at a point about 16 miles west of the city. below the mouth of the Shenandoan, Frequently after heavy rains the water is cloudy and even muddy. The project of installing a great filtration plant has been agitated for a long time, but Congress has not provided the necessary means. Regulations governing the milk supply, more stringent than those of almost any other city, are enforced by the District government. It is believed, however, that the present epidemic of typhoid fever may be due to some common source of contamination in milk sold in certain quarters of the city, and an erort will be made to locate the source.

Gift to Smithsonian-The Smithsonian institution has received from S. S. Howland, a wealthy former resident of Washington, a valuable collection of articles pertaining to Burmese royalty and religion which were collected by the donor in his travels. The articles comprise a number of household and personal effects of the Burmese king, including a bed, an inlaid cabinet and a velvet saddle. The religious relics include three bronze figures of Buddha, a pair of alms bowls like those used by the Buddhist priests in begging, and a carved wooden shrine, with inlaid figures, of the god Buddha and his fourteen apostles. A valuable manuscript of the Pentateuch, dating back to the 11th century is a feature of the collection, while other manuscripts are the Koran, or Bible, of the Mohammedans, the Psalms and gospels of St. John in Ethiopic, and a copy of the Pentateuch in Hebrew on parchment. Among the other articles are a houdah of the sacred white elephant of Burmah, two carved figures representing the Chinese gods of war and peace, a Buddhist prayer wheel, a sample of sacred writing on palm leaves, two bronze temple lamps and a temple prayer drum from

Thibet. Indians Starving-Commissioner of Indian Affairs Jones has received a telegram from Senator Rawlins of Utah, requesting that immediate assistance be sent to 6000 Indians in southern Utah, who are reported to be in a starving condition. Mr. Jones asked and received authority from the secretary of the interior to purchase $3000 worth of supplies in the open market and thus save the time necessary in advertising for bids. Relief will be sent at once. The destitution of the Indians is caused by the failure of the crops, due to excessive drought. Miles' Mission-In accordance with instructions received from the President, Acting Secretary of War Sanger has notified Gen. Miles that his application for permission to make a tour of inspection in the Philippine Islands had been favorably acted upon by the President. Gen. Miles made some time ago and expressed his desire to start on the tour at as early a date as convenient. The order fixes Sept. 15 as about the time for him to sail, but fixes no date for the termination of his tour. During his presence in the Philippines Gen. Miles will, of course, have nothing to do with the direction of the campaign, his functions being restricted to very much the same as those of an inspector-general. He can, if he sees fit, make a report criticising as severely as he likes the discipline and equipment of the army in the islands, and if he should choose to give himself considerable latitude in writing the report of his observations he might even criticise the conduct of the campaign from a purely military standpoint. His application to the president in the present case, however, is upon a radically different basis from that on which he made application some months ago when he asked for authority to take charge of the Philippine campaign.

The (rafty Farmer,

It appears that an old farmer near Houghton owned a large pile of small stones, with which he wished to fill a ditch, but he had already got about as much work out of his boys that day as they were willing to do, especially as it was nearing the hour for a ball game. The old man was bound to have the stones moved, anyhow, and so, pretending to have discovered a nest of snakes in the ditch. began stoning the place where the snakes were alleged to be. The boys, who were a few minutes before were weary and listless, were now all life and animation Each threw stones as fast as he could grab them, and the pile was soon in the ditch. Our next issue will appear Wednesday morning, and hereafter the Exterprise will become a middle of the week publication. The innovation has not been decided upon in any way to obtain advantage of our contemporary, but to give the readers of both papers better service. It frequently occurs that many news happenings of the latter part of the week, after the hour of going to press, and in the early part of the following week, becomes stale reading by the time of appearance in the next issue, when it appears simultaneously in both papers. Likewise it often occurs that many announcements would be made of events to take place at tmes, when by the present arrangement, it is too late to insure publication in the current issue, and the succeeding issue is too late to give effectual publicity. Therefore the local newspaper service is of no value in promoting the event. By he new arrangement we feel the public will be benefited and the gain to our contemporary will be the equal of our

English Grand Opera.

The English grand opera season, which is to open at the Tremont theatre, Boston, on Sept. 22, is being anticipated by the local music lovers, for already orders are being received in each mail, some of them asking for seats for every change of bill. Henry W. Savage, who is the director of the grand opera company, and John B. Schoeffel, the manager of the theatre, look confidently forward to one of the biggest engagements the theatre has ever had. They will make no advance of price, the regular theatre prices will obtain, and as it is known that the productions are very handsome and the organization made up of 135 people with voices, it is also certain that the representations will be adequate. The repertory will include: "Il Trovatore," "Faust," "Lohengrin," "The Bohemian Girl." "Aida," "Carmen," "Tannhauser" and "Martha." "Il Trovatore" will be the enening bill and will be followed by

HAMLIN'S WIZARD OIL TOOTHACHE

THE CRADLERS.

(AN OLD-TIME HARVEST SCENE)

The golden wheat stands like a wall—
A twenty-acre field.
The brawny cradlers—five in all—
Bare-breasted, hairy-armed, and tall, Five crescents gap the grain a-near, As the five blades swing home, Five golden gavels fall a-rear, And five line-butted swaths appear, "Allow that patch must yield;"
Their "grape vines" o'er their shoulders Lain each inside its comb As the five mighty reapers sway, with fingers crookt, and broad blades From side to side in slant array, Like gulls o'er ocean's foam.

So, all day long, through rising morn,
And midday's shimmering heat,
The swish of severing scythes is borne,
Or whetstones chanting to the corn,
The death song of the wheat.
Only the noon-ride dinner call,
Awhile brings trues and rest to all. Then to the charge—a thrilling sight— Leads up the first, swings to the right— Awhile brings truce, and rest to all— A lull before defeat. The shorn stems on the fingers laugh, Fat kernels peep through bursting chaff,

Hot, round and red, in western sky. Sinks low the summer sun;
And still the swinging cradles sigh,
While all around the fallen lie
In sheaves, the fight near won; Then binders all, and cradlers join,
And shock the sheaves, and cap, and groin—

The day—the task is done.

disputable; it breaks down all barriers when it asserts itself. The wonder is that any one who has felt its power should attempt to dispute its supremacy or lessen its obligations. From the remotest ages love has laughed at locksmiths, flipped giddy fingers at parents and guardians, evading safe conventional trammels to throw its future on that providence which extends its protection to children and fools. To which type Fred Marmon and Lillian Wickes belonged is uncertain, but circumstances would indicate that a fair blending of each type united in their ensemble.

It is safe to assume that the pair had no intention of being married when they took a Sunday trip to St. Joe. They were not even engaged, but lovers they certainly were, and had been since their earliest years. Let no synic smile when their ages are given. Fred was twenty-one and Lillian eighteen, old enough to know better, and young enough to stake all on a fund of love that must last a lifetime. So far they played to win.

With the details of their marriage escapade this chronicler has naught to do. They telegraphed the disagreeable truth to their respective families -said it was the result of a dare-and received all their belongings by express, comprising the hurried contents of six or seven trunks, five of them bein their room at the hotel and Lilian broke down and wept.

"My family of dolls that I played with when I was a happy child!" she sobbed. "I think it was real mean for mamma to put them in."

"And my tops and marbles, and 'Robinson Crusoe,' and all my old school books," whimpered Fred.

"Never mind," said Mrs. Fred with brave determination, "we'll show them we can live without them." "I don't know how," retorted Fred. "Haven't we got each other?" she asked tenderly.

"Yes, darling, but this is not a cannibal age. You are sweet, but I do not want to eat you, though I may live to be sorry I did not."

"I hope I'll disagree with you if you pouted Lillian. "But empty our trunks and hang up our wardrobe."

"How long do you think we can live at this hostelry?" asked Fred.

"Did you dare me to marry you without a dollar in your pockets, Fred Har-

"It looks that way, sweetheart." "Oh, well, we'll come out all right. They'll kill the fatted calf in a week or two and beg us to come home. Wait and you'll see."

They waited, but the welcoming veal seemed to have gone into the meat trust; no hint of it came their way. Fred drew a little money he had in bank in his home city, and they left St. Joe, which was perilously near Chicago, and went to Petoskey, a point in Michigan, where none of their friends dians roved the streets in blankets and moccasins, and they did not get very far from the truth, either. They stopped at Cushman's, but saw began to look for humbler lodging, and Fred was willing to go to work at anything he could find ready to his hand. Like all college graduates, he thought he would confer a favor on any employer by working for him. Now this was the time for providential help, and it came. They went out in a thunderstorm and reached the door of a pretty cottage just as a bolt of lightning shot from the skies, striking a tree in the vicinity and frightening them badly. The cottage was remote from other dwellings and uninhabited. The windows were boarded up and the outside door fastened with a padlock which Lillian picked with a hairpin as easily as if it had been a prearranged feat. Fred managed to open the inside door. and they found themselves in the coziest of summer homes, prettily furnished, with matting on the floors, any quantity of bric-a-brac on shelves, trophies from Indian camps and an entourage of housekeeping articles in excess of what they needed. A clock on the mantel ticked merrily as if giving the young couple a welcome. They fell into each others' arms in an ecstacy of delight. But when the storm was over and the blue sky appeared their spirits sunk to zero. What if they were arrested for breaking into a house? "The people have just left for a few hours, for the clock is still going," said

"Perhaps it is an eight-day clock and

HE autocracy of love is in- | they left it to run down," suggested Fred; "we must stay until they come and pay for any damage."

At dusk no one had appeared and they went to the hotel for their dinner and learned that the family owning the cottage had been suddenly called away. They were wealthy New York people. These inquiries were made surreptitiously, not at the desk or in the office. The next day the Harmons paid their reckoning and left the hotel, it was supposed for some distant point, but night found them occupying the pretty cottage. They had simply pre-empted the property on a dare. They would stay until the clock ran

And now these irresponsible young people found themselves in a rose colored Bohemia, which was all the more enchanting on account of their education from infancy on respectable conventional lines. They went where they pleased, they did what they pleased, turned night into day and day iuto night. Their chafing dish suppers were a reckless abandon of convivial fasting. All the prohibited dishes of their childhood were cooked and eaten. Fortunately their menu was a simple one, and did not include the luxuries, and the air of that exempt country gives one an appetite that is not fastidious. They made the most of everything, for they expected every morning that the clock would be silent and their lease expire, longing to Lillian. They were opened or that the owners of the cottage would come and turn them out.

But no such event occurred. The clock ticked on serenely, although they packed up at the end of eight days to move on, but there was no cessation in the steady tick-tock of the timekeeper on the mantel. So they decided that it was a thirty-day clock, and waited. When the month was up that clock had not stopped.

No, the clock did not stop. One morning Lillian was lifting golden spheres of fried mush from the chafing dish, and Fred was making the coffee for breakfast, when a loud knock sounded on the cottage door.

"The family from New York?" cried

"The fatted calf!" said Fred. who caught the profile of a masculine Ro-

When they opened the door a pair of firm arms embraced them both.

"My children!" exclaimed Lillian's father, "why did you not let us know you were here? We would have flown to you on the wings of love."

"You've been a long time about it," said Mrs. Harmon, with dignity, as she reached over her father's shoulder to recognize her mother and sister, who were bringing up the rear.

"We have been jolly happy, sir," remarked Mr. Harmon, coolly; "there isn't any good thing we've wanted, is

"Nothing but your approval," Lillian said graciously; she thought it prudent to let by-gones be by-gones. As soon as they could get a moment to compare notes the two agreed not lived and where they had heard In- to tell the old folks the story of the cot-

"They would have to be educated up to it before they would believe it," said Lillian, "and we won't tell them about their little stock of money going and the clock, either. Why, we could never convince them that it hadn't been wound up or that there wasn't any

> The family stayed a week and made it evident that the calf awaited the young people whenever they chose to return and attend the banquet. Before they left the old gentleman stood before the mantel with a pleased expression on his race and his hands under his coat-tails.

"I see you have one of those anniversary clocks. Must have cost you something snug?" "Oh, not so much," mumbled Fred ndifferently.

"It's a beauty," continued the pater, touching the glass case with appreciaive fingers. "I saw them at the exposition in Paris and now Chicago is full of them, I understand. Their main value is that they only need winding once a year."

The two castaways looked at each other, then they giggled, and pulled themselves together in time to say good-bye with becoming gravity. And they promised to finish their outing and go home soon, a promise they will undoubtedly keep. - Chicago Record-Herald.

Bulbs Used in Druggists' Windows Are Going Out of Fashion. Those huge glass bulbs of red and yellow and blue water, which are called show bottles, are gradually ceasing to be a feature of the decoration of druggists' windows. In the past they were as necessary to every drug store as a red and white pole is to a barber shop, but they have not, as the pole has, a well-defined history. All that druggists know of them is that they have been always used as window ornaments. The brilliant liquids that they contain are made heaply and plainly of chemicals and water.

Thus, a solution of copper and ammonia makes blue; bichromate of potash makes orange; aniline dyes have of late been used in the chemicals' place, but the liquids fade in a strong sunlight, and have frequently to be renewed. The liquids colored chemically, on the other hand, last well nigh forever.

In the drug store at the southwest corner of Broad and Spruce streets there is a show bottle of a very clear and delicate shade of green. This is a green so fine that many druggists have asked for the recipe that makes it. This, unfortunately, is unknown.

A clerk in the shop twenty-five years ago colored the water and filled the bottle, and a little later left for unknown parts. Preserved only by a cork of cotton from the air, the liquid has ever since remained as brilliant as it was in 1877.

There are, indeed, many show bottles in this city whose contents are from twenty-five to fifty years old.-Philadelphia Record.

No Eves in Chicago.

A student of the Chicago Directory, says an exchange, find that there are in the city 700 Adams and not a single Eve. But of Cains there are 55 and Abels 8. The city is well supplied with patriarchs-100 Abrahams, 19 Isaacs and 600 Jacobs. And of Solomons there are 110. There are 15 Darlings and but two men whose name is Kill, and there is a total of 90 Loves, but not a Lover, although there is one Mormon. The most abbreviated name is Re. Some of the other odd names are Papa. Morningstar and Paradise. The only man in Chicago, who, according to the directory, is a Fake, is Fred L., one of the Assistant State's Attorneys. It seems that, after all the men in Chicago are divided in about the same proportion as the men of the world, according to New Testament inferences. There are 25 Hopes, 7 Faiths and one poor, lonely Charity among the names. There are 8 Pains and only one Well.

Power From a Sewer.

City Electrician Ellicott, of Chicago, has long been an earnest advocate of the utilization of the water of the Chicago drainage canal for the purpose of generating power for city use. He has figured that the city could save a large sum of money yearly by lighting its streets from current thus obtained, but he has been unsuccessful in having his plan adopted because of the great original cost of such a plant, which is estimated at two and a half million dollars. However, the scheme is about to be carried out by a group of capitalists of that city, headed by Robert Gaylord. It is said that the company has secured options on lands both sides of the Desplaines River, for three-quarters of a mile south of Joliet, Ill. A dam will be erected at this point and 20,000 horse-power developed. The scheme is meeting with some opposition on the part of the Sanitary District Board of Trustees.

Prize For a Gold Process. The Government of New Zealand has offered a reward of $10,000 to any person who, before the first of January, 1904, shall invent appliances to successfully save gold from black sands in New Zealand. The invention shall, in its main features, differ from all machinery and appliances at present in use for the saving of gold, whether coarse or fine. It shall be readily transportable from place to place, and shall be capable of utilizing local water for all its requirements. The invention must be capable of treating not less than thirty cubic yards an hour of black sand or any coarser material. It must be capable of treating such material profitably where there is not more than a value in gold of six cents per cubic yard not less than eighty per cent. of the gold contained in the material to be recovered by the machine.

According to the London Chronicle, a remarkable case of cure of lupus by means of the application of X-rays is one of the topics of interest in Newcastle-on-Tyne medical circles. woman who had suffered from the disease for over thirty years was operated upon at the hospital. For nearly 200 consecutive days she was subjected to exposures of fifteen minutes' duration, and after inflammation of the tissues had set in a complete cure ensued. POOL.-

There is no more exhilarating pastime to the man who uses his brain excessively than that of pool playing. It furnishes a radical change from the routine of constant thinking in regli lar channels for it brings into use a diversity of thoughts entirely foreign thereto and therefore recreative in character. Besides, it affords much wholesome physical exercise otherwise. Our pool-room at No 491 Mass. Ave., Arlington is a retreat for those who would, for a brief time, drive dull care away. It is kept in the most orderly manner and we solicit the patronage of gentlemen. We have no room for idlers or loungers of a social caste who can not mingle with gentlemen.

THE OLD MARLOWE WINE CO. 3 256 FRIEND STREET, BOSTON, MASS

A Reminder of the Sixties.

The bobbing brims of children's hats weighted down with a bunch of flowers in front reminds an elderly woman of the days of the 60's, when to the front of similar wide-brimmed hats was attached a "puller," or narrow ribbon, which was used to pull down the brim to secure the effect now obtained by the weight of flowers.

The Wedding Gown Box.

The wedding gown box is one of the latest fads to be adopted by the brideto-be. That every bride possessed of any sentiment wishes to keep her wedding gown in a state of preservation is a foregone conclusion, and this receptacle is admirably suited for the purpose for which it was designed. It is made of light wood, enameled white, and has the bride's initials in silver letters on the top. It is lined with tufted white satin, and the lock is of Cabochons For Fall Trimming. The new cabochons are of very large size. They are flatter than they have been, and are often in arabesqued open work set with cut jet or steel, or in chaste oxidized silver or dull gilt. Some of the gilt cabochons are sold in pairs, the two joined by a double festoon of gilt beads. These are used to trim the under side of hats. When a feather is placed on or under the edge of the brim, it will often be fastened by a large cabochon says the Millinery Trade Review A new ornament is provided to serve this purpose. It is a chaste metal snap that clasps over the edge of the brim, securing the feather to it. Shoals of osprey or aigrette are sometimes fastened in this way by their middle, to the edge of a plateau. Milliners are also using small gilt or steel buttons to fasten down traps of ribbon.

Ostrich Plumes and Feathers.

By what has gone before, the important place which ostrich feathers occupy at the present writing will be realized. It is understood that the trade is prepared to satisfy a very large demand for amazons and also for feathers of medium length and tips. High class milliners will do a great deal in shaded and variegated feathers. The arrangement referred to above, namely the twisting around of the tip of the feather into a pouf, gives a massive and rich effect to an amazon, but only the very largest can be so treated. Plumes of cock's feathers in natural colors, as well as dyed in different bright tints, are likely to be very much favored, possibly, however, white more than any, says the Millinery Trade Review. Wings continue in much request, particularly large, stump shaped wings and quite small ones such as those of blackbirds and parakeets, and there is a renewed demand for couteaux, which are mostly asked for in pairs. They are not very long. but wide and often dyed in variegated tints, including checks and plaids. Some are colored to imitate leaves and broad grasses. In fashionable shops frequent mention has been made of fruits. These will divide favor with seasonable flowers for the autumn months. It is understood that black flowers mounted with green leaves will be worn, they already having been shown on some hats.

New Methods of Making Bows.

Special interest must be attached to the different new methods of making up bows, rosettes and other arrangements of ribbon or piece materials, as applicable to early winter hats. Louis XV, bows are now made of quilled ribbon wired in the ordinary way. A piece of the quilled ribbon may be sewn in a circle round the centre of the plateau, and the rest of the ribbon be arranged in a very large wired bow resting on the back of the hat, which shelves down in the neck, The under sides of some hats are trimmed with narrow Pompadour ribbons laid on flat in the form of Louis XV. bows. Bows made of No. 12 ribbon velvet are often placed under the brim, loops and ends hanging down behind the ear. Fan shaped bows, with a great many loops, for the backs of hats, are sometimes made of this ribbon, sometimes of piece velvet. Large bows of four or more large loops, fastened in the centre by a buckle, are laid flat on plateau hats, says the Millinery Trade Review. Another arrangement consists of a wide piece of accordion pleated satin, forming a big flat rosette, the pleats being smoothed out on either side. Ball rosettes about the size of a big orange are very fashionable. These may be made of loops of rather wide ribbon or of a fold of material closely gathered. Wide Pompadour and plaid ribbons may be used for the purpose. Large flat rosettes or cockades are equally favored, particularly made in two shades of bright green or golden velvet, or of chine flowered ribbon bordered with black satin.

The Women's Hotels. The following data are collected in the interest of the movement in cities for housing and feeding women workers en masse. It is "girls, girls, girls," that appear chiefly as beneficiaries of the movement, but any self-supporting woman should be entitled by right and not by grace to the advantages of the collective home or hotel. Reports from ninety of these homes in forty-six cities are given very fully in Bulletin 15, 1898, United States Labor Department.

The first started in New York City in 1856. Almost none has become entirely self-supporting in the half-century of development. This fact will show in history the small share of the commonwealth allowed the working women of the country at this period. The wages of our working women in Boston are a little below those of New York and Chicago, while the cost of subsistence is much higher. Taking data from one of our more recently established homes, the boarding house under Unitarian auspices, formerly on Berkeley street, we learn that in its first seven years in a hired building, with about forty boarders and few transients, the average cost per capita for board, laundry and other incidentals, was $3.30 per week. (Price of board and lodging $4.) The cost of raw material of food averaged $2.15 per week. There was a surplus of $600 or $700 per annum to go toward the salary of superintendent and rent. In Chicago, a woman's club, grown to 100, self-managed, for some years covered all costs of their home at $3 per week per member.

There are thousands of working girls and women in Boston who cannot pay even the lowest rate charged by the present homes in Boston, including the latest, the Franklin Square House, $3.50 per week, and must still live in garrets, or worn-out lodging houses with "relief" in plain sight. One important fact, not strictly apropos to increase of wages, is from the Maria Louisa Home for temporary guests, New York City. In 1896, 561,000 pieces were laundered at a cost of seveneighths of one cent per piece. This item, if none other, decides for such a home against the average private house, with its picayune methods, where the difficulty of washing a handkerchief makes the thought of cleanliness a perpetual nightmare.-Boston Evening Transcript.

An international exhibition of women's arts and crafts will open in Paris soon in the great glass building on the banks of the Seine, in which were held the horticultural shows during the World's Fair of 1900. The woman who lives in the suburbs might pot a lot of ferns from the woods, and when they are thriving in the fall get orders for them. Being so popular they ought surely to be in demand, and if not, there would be no loss incurred.

Representative George H. Fall, who introduced and championed the bill which recently passed the Massachusetts Legislature making mothers equal guardians of children with fathers, states that two-thirds of the credit for its passage is due to Mrs. Fall. He is a lawyer, and after her marriage Mrs. Fall studied law also.

CLEANING CURTAINS. Neither a Complicated Nor a Difficult

Process. Cleaning curtains is not so formidable a task, and it is sometimes necessary when the curtains are too much worn to be entrusted to the over-developed muscles of the professional. Take Madras curtains, say, that have been wet by the rain and baked by the sun till they are brittle. Of course, they'll not be equal to any very severe treatment; yet by care it is quite possible to have them clean without ruining them. The same rules will be found to hold good for most other curtains that one would wash at all.

DUST OUT FIRST.

First of all, as much of the dust as possible must be removed. A good shaking is the first move in this direction. If this does not remove all the dust the rest must be routed by means of a whisk broom, or a fine, soft brush, according to the texture and remaining strength of the curtain.

To prepare the washing water, boil four ounces of soap in a quart of water until it becomes a jelly. Have ready two tubs full of hot water, and to these add the boiled soap. A handful of bran in each tub will prevent the colors from running.

Do not rub the curtains unless they are new and very tough; even then it is far from improving their appearauce. Sash curtains (gathered care fully in the hand, at first one end and then the other) may be carried up and down, allowing the suds to run freely through. Then squeeze them gently, time and again, until they are clean as possible. Then squeeze out the water and put them in the clean tub of water, and go through the same pro-

Long curtains must, of course, be doubled, and, perhaps, doubled again, in order to be manageable to the average arm.

The rinsing is important, and there must be enough waters to remove every bit of soapy water. The handling is the same as in the washing, only there's less of the squeezing and more of the carrying up and down. As for putting blueing in the last rinsing water, that is a question. Some women are addicted to blueing. They will blue! It may be all right in dead white curtains, but it ruins the beauty of those in cream, ecru and the warmer

THE DRYING.

Quite as important as any other detail is the drying. While it may be much the best to dry either in frames or pin out on the floor, a careful worker may put them on a tightly stretched clothes line. Care must be taken to pull them gently into proper squareness as they begin to dry.

Handy Flour Can.

An ingenious convenience for household use is a flour can which has just made its appearance. It is large enough to hold a bag of flour and is equipped with a sifting device operated by a crank, so that the contents come out sifted, ready for use, and may be taken by the cupful if so desired. The recentacle resembles an inverted milk can, but is labeled "Flour," so that there need be no mistake about its Sorrel For Salad-At a farmhouse table recently a delicious salad of shredded cabbage was sprinkled with the common sorrel, which grows wild in the fields. The delicate tartness of the sorrel gave a delightfully piquant quality to the salad.

Coffee Cake-One cup sugar, one egg, half cup of butter. Beat well. Add one-fourth of a nutmeg, one teaspoonful each of cloves and cinnamon, two teaspoonfuls baking powder in two and one-half cups of flour; one coffee cup of strong coffee, one cup chopped raisins. Bake an hour in moderate

Puddings-A cheap and delicious rice pudding is made by boiling threefourths of a cup of rice in a quart of milk, using a double boiler or using a pail set in kettle of boiling water. Boil two hours. Remove from fire, stir in yolks of two eggs, three tablespoonfuls of sugar, a pinch of salt, one teaspoonful of vanilla. Beat the whites of the eggs very stiff. Add two tablespoonfuls of sugar and one teaspoonful of lemon extract. Spread over the pudding in a pudding dish. Brown in the oven. Serve ice cold.

Eggs in Green Pepper-Blanch six green peppers (having removed the stems and seeds) by dipping in boiling water for three minutes, and then in ice water until crisp. Half fill each with a rich cream sauce, cover the sauce with a tablespoonful of buttered crumbs and place in a quick oven for twenty minutes, basting often with butter and water; then drop an egg into each one and return to the oven until the eggs are "set." Dust each egg with a quarter saltspoonful of salt and dash of pepper.

Mrs. Annie McKay, Chaplain Sons of Temperance, 326 Spadina Ave., Toronto, Cured of Severe Female Troubles by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

" DEAR MRS. PINKHAM: - Being a mother of five children 1 have had experience with the general troubles of my sex. I was lacerated when one of my children was born and from that hour I date all my afflictions. I found that within a few months my health was impaired, I had female weakness and serious inflammation and frequent flooding. I became weak and dizzy but kept on my feet, dragging through my work without life or pleasure. A neighbor who had been helped by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound insisted that I take at least one bottle. I did so and felt so much better that I kept on the treatment. For seven months I used the Compound faithfully and gladly do I say it, health and strength are mine once more. I know how to value it now when it was so nearly lost, and I appreciate how great a debt I owe you. The few dollars I spent for the medicine cannot begin to pay what it was worth to me. Yours very truly, Mrs. Anna McKay, Chaplain Sons of Temperance."

A Benefit to Farmers.

The benefits that will undoubtedly result to farmers from the recent incorporation of the International Harvester Company which took over the business of the five leading harvester manufacturers have probably not been considered by a large portion of the farming

The economical necessity of a consolidation of the interests of manufacturers and those of their farmer customers must be apparent to any one who understands the present situation.

The increased and increasing cost of material, manufacturing and sellingthe latter in consequence of extreme and bitter competition between manufacturers and their several selling agents -has made the business unprofitable.

The two alternatives left for the manufacturers were either the increasing of the prices of machines or the reduction of the cost of manufacture and sales. The latter could only be accomplished by concentrating the business in one company.

As can readily be seen, the forming of the new company was not a stock jobbing operation but a centering of mutual interests. There is no watered stock; the capitalization is conservative and represented by actual and tangible assets. There is no stock offered to the public, it having all been subscribed and paid for by the manufac turers and their associates.

The management of the International Harvester Company is in the hands of well known, experienced men.

The officers are: President, Cyrus H. McCormick; Chairman Executive Committee, Charles Deering; Chairman Finance Committee, George W. Perkins: Vice-Presidents, Harold F. McCormick, James Deering, Wm. H. Jones and John J. Glessner; Secretary and Treasurer, Richard F. Howe. The members of the Board of Directors are as follows: Cv. rus Bentley, William Deering, Charles Deering, James Deering, Eldridge M. Fowler, E. H. Gary, John J. Glessner, Richard F. Howe, Abram M. Hyatt, William H. Jones, Cyrus H. McCormick, Harold F. McCormick, George W. Perkins, Norman B. Ream, Leslie N. Ward, Paul D. Cravath.

The International Harvester Company owns five of the largest harvester plants in existence, the Champion, Deering, McCormick, Milwaukee and Plano-plants that have been producing nearly or quite 90 per cent. of the harvesting machines of the world.

It also owns timber and coal lands, blast furnaces and a steel plant; it has a new factory in the process of construction in Canada.

It is believed that the cost of produc ing grain, grass and corn harvesting machines will be so reduced that the present low prices can be continued, and that consequently the results cannot be otherwise than beneficial to the farmer. ,To maintain the present prices of these machines means to continue and increase the development of the agriculture of the world, for no one cause has contributed or can contribute more to this development than the cheapness of machines for harvesting

The Bees.

In the beehive proper there are three personages-the queen, the worker bee and the drone. The queen is of first and greatest importance. She is a full developed female and is the mother of all the bees in her hive.

His love for and his em- Cup Tournament, Saturday, Aug. 30, phasis of family life, are a worthy and glowing tribute to the children. President Roosevelt believes in boys and girls. He sees in the home the hope and the prophecy of the future of this country. Diaz beat Davis ... 6-4 6-4 Whatever may be said of Theodore Roosevelt as the chief executive of the nation, and he richly deserves much as such, he vet deserves infinitely more as a man, and as a husband and father. His home at Oyster Bay puts in italics every word that he has spoken of family life while on his recent New England trip. Roosevelt gets near to the American people because he comes to them bringing nothing other than his own natural self The presidency has not robbed him of his simple, charming way in which he gets at people. He is a born democrat. It is the man whom he regards, and not his position and surroundings, however fortunate these may be.

President Roosevelt is unquestionably the most popular man in Butters, L. F. Redmond. all this country through, and for the reason that added to his ability and keen insight into things, there is that "strenuous," honest manhood that commends itself to all classes and grades of life. Yes, President Roosevelt stands to-day as the most distinguished representative of both private and public life, not only in this country, but over the waters as well.

TO SCHOOL AGAIN.

On Monday the schools reopen after the long summer vacation, when it is hoped that the pupils will promptly be at their desks. The Enterprise is interested in the public schools of Arlington, and our people take a commendable pride in them. Arlington has no interest of more importance than that attaching to her public the Brighton team after a well conschools. They are fundamental tested fight. to all good citizenship—they are the strong right arm of the home and the church. They deserve the aid and encouragement of all concerned. The Enterprise wishes them a successful year.

In all the zigzag trip of the President over New England, why was it the Paul Revere route was forgotten?

A St. Petersburg medical student, M. Kolomaizeff, has just completed a curious scientific experiment; he has hatched out a turkey's egg by carrying it about for 18 days under his arm. In consequence of his success quite a crowd of people in St. Petersburg are now endeavoring to hatch out geese, hens and ducks in the same manner, It is a healthier occupation than hatching plots.

If this had been the middle of a red-hot political campaign, Boston could not have received a favored candidate more cordially than it received the president of the United States. From the Boston & Maine station to Symphony hall, where he delivered a speech, there were dense crowds filling the sidewalks from the curbstone back to the building line. They were not quiet crowds. They cheered and howled continuously. The utmost vigilance of the cavalrymen who acted as outriders for the carriages in line was necessary to keep them from overrunning the short procession. It was the biggest crowd the president has seen since he was in Pittsburg. He was kept on his feet bowing to right and left every step of the way. The shou's of affection and humorous appreciation of his fighting qualities which were hurled at him from all sides made a roar that drowned the rattle of the horses' feet. Every time the guns of Battery A, First Artillery, boomed out a shot of the 21-gun salute which they gave him from a seques tered nook of the common, the whole great populace joined in a cheer that shook the sacred subway to its foundations. It was a great afternoon for

The people of Boston, in addition to welcoming President Roosevelt Tuesday, also welcomed the opening of the Arcade on Washington street, the difference being that the welcome which the public gave the Arcade lasted all day long and until the doors were locked late in the afternoon, when the clerks and others in the 50 different departments took a much needed breathing spell. The opening of this Arcade bodes well for its future, as everybody who visited the place came away apparently satisfied, and the crowd was an enormous one However, it is such a spacious place that very little difficulty was experienced and this is really remarkable for any new business establishment. It speaks well for the organization of the Arcade. The location of this Arcade, in the very heart of the retail shopping district, is an advantage. It is in this respect very well favored, but even this slight advantage would not amount to much unless the goods and prices were what the public likes The Arcade is splendidly lighted, conveniently located, filled with a choice assortment of goods, and with busi ness men who are specialists.

Master David Robinson, the 16-year old North End boy who has made such an excellent reputation as a violinist sailed yesterday for Paris, where he will devote himself to the study of the violin. Young Robinson is the son of a pedler who lives at 47 Allen street. His expenses are being paid by a well-known society woman who refuses to allow her name to be pub lished. Young Robinson's talent first became known through the efforts of President Max Mitchell of the Associated Hebrew Charities, who had him play before nearly all the well-known music critics in Boston, and all agree that he has a wonderful future before him. The young musician created quite a furor when he played in Faneuil hall last winter. He has been president of the North End Industrial League orchestra, and is very popular among his boy friends. He is of medium stature with expressive dark eyes and a thoughtful expression.

Down on Essex street they are putting up a new building, which in itself is not remarkable, but in order to put up this building, however, a tree had to be cut down, and it is not every day that a relic of forestry interferes with modern improvements in the heart of the city. The tree was one of the most remarkable that has grown within the precincts of the city in many a day. It was the only one standing south of State street and east of Washington street. With its passing goes perhaps the last tie that connects the present bustling generation and the modern life of Boston with that of two score years and more ago, when Essex street was the home of many breadwinners, and when there were many fashionable boarding houses on the street.
